Description of the Organisation (what is the organisation concerned ith)	Patients founded the Long Covid Switzerland association in Bern on 26 March 2021 to promote the recognition of Long Covid as a disease, research into clinical treatments and support for those affected. The self-help organization has its roots in the Facebook group Long Covid Switzerland, which has been advising and supporting Long Covid sufferers since September 2020 and offers them a platform for multilingual exchange. Those affected in French-speaking Switzerland also exchange information in the French-speaking group Covid-19 forme longue Suisse. Since January 2022, affected families have been able to find support in a Long Covid Kids Switzerland group and public information on the website.	From 1994 - 2008, the Werner Alfred Selo Foundation supported research projects on depression, with a special focus on comorbidity with migraine. In 2008, the foundation changed its focus and has since then concentrated on raising awareness through effective public relations work. To this end it launches creative projects. The Werner Alfred Selo Foundation, Zug, grants contributions, scholarships, prizes, etc. for research into depression and headaches (comorbidity). This research may relate to the manifestations, course of the disease, the condition of those affected, treatment options and social significance of these diseases.	The upway association was founded to realize and launch an idea that is unique in Switzerland, the upway app "Help with mental health problems". The upway app helps affected people to find their way back into their social environment and the world of work. As a platform for those directly and indirectly affected, employers, service providers and state institutions, upway provides anonymous sufferers with easy access to suitable professional treatment, mutual and private support services. The upway association is the sponsor of this initiative, which helps people where the possibilities of the state and society have been exhausted.	The association GLEICH UND ANDERS Schweiz aims to promote mental health and is committed to prevention, integration/inclusion and support for people with mental illnesses and their relatives.	The Women's Brain Project organizes events, workshops and ECM (continuous medical education credits) courses for companies and organizations interested in furthering their understanding of sex and gender differences in brain and mental health as the gateway to precision medicine.	The Swiss Migraine Research Association was founded in 2006 by Dr. Reto Agosti, Head of the Headache Center Hirslanden Zurich, and, in addition to research projects, is primarily committed to increasing awareness and acceptance of migraine in society.
